Cyanine Dyes: Fine Structures in Their Absorption Spectra

The fluorescence of electrochromic molecules changes with their charge state. Doppagne et al. studied the optical emission of single zinc-phthalocyanine molecules excited by electron injection from a scanning tunneling microscope tip. The molecules were adsorbed on salt layers grown on a gold surface, so that the cationic and neutral molecules could both be observed.

Absorption spectroscopy is useful in chemical analysis because of its specificity and its quantitative nature. The specificity of absorption spectra allows compounds to be distinguished from one another in a mixture, making absorption spectroscopy useful in wide variety of applications.

Photoemission spectroscopy (PES), also known as photoelectron spectroscopy, refers to energy measurement of electrons emitted from solids, gases or liquids by the photoelectric effect, in order to determine the binding energies of electrons in a substance. The term refers to various techniques, depending on whether the ionization energy is provided by an X-ray photon, an EUV photon, or an ...

The rapid increase in the breadth and scope of transformations that involve metal-promoted activation of C H bonds is fundamentally changing the field of synthetic chemistry. Direct arylation polymerization is a newly established synthetic protocol for atom economical, effective, and affordable preparation of conjugated polymers, which continue to be incredibly advantageous as operative ...
