Etymology. According to the Encyclopædia Britannica Eleventh Edition "rigging" derives from Anglo-Saxon wrigan or wringing, "to clothe". The same source points out that "rigging" a sailing vessel refers to putting all the components in place to allow it to function, including the masts, spars, sails and the rigging.

Capsizing (but not necessarily turtling) is an inherent part of dinghy sailing, and is considered to be "routine." It is not a question of "if" but a question of "when." Practice capsize drills are (and should be) part of the training of every dinghy sailor.

Brushless Generators: Among the most common because of their inexpensive construction, brushless generators have the least reliable voltage control. Brushless generators can't react quickly to changing loads, either producing low power (a brownout) or high power. Fluctuations of this nature will cause voltage sensitive equipment like HMI lights to shut off, or will damage sensitive electronics.
