The elements of groups 4-11 are generally recognized as transition metals, justified by their typical chemistry, i.e. a large range of complex ions in various oxidation states, colored complexes, and catalytic properties either as the element or as ions (or both).

The group 11 metals are typically categorised as transition metals given they can form ions with incomplete d-shells. Physically, they have the relatively low melting points and high electronegativity values associated with post-transition metals.

The d-block of the periodic table contains the elements of the groups 3-12 in which the d orbitals are progressively filled in each of the four long periods. The elements constituting the f-block are those in which the 4 f and 5 f orbitals are progressively filled in the latter two long periods; these elements are formal Precious metals are rare, naturally occurring metallic chemical elements and are used in jewellery, art, electronics and scientific industries. This is a list of the top producing countries per each precious metal.

The top producing countries of precious metals.

2.2. Industrial wastewater sources. Industrial wastewater streams containing heavy metals are produced from different industries. Electroplating and metal surface treatment processes generate significant quantities of wastewaters containing heavy metals (such as cadmium, zinc, lead, chromium, nickel, copper, vanadium, platinum, silver, and titanium) from a variety of applications.
