The Art of Service believe that a continuous pursuit of knowledge is the only way to maintain a competitive edge in the world of technology. Far too often, leaders will realize that their existing knowledge is not going to be relevant for the outcome expected, and they are at risk of becoming obsolete.

In computer science, message queues and mailboxes are software-engineering components used for inter-process communication (IPC), or for inter-thread communication within the same process. They use a queue for messaging â€” the passing of control or of content. Group communication systems provide similar kinds of functionality.. The message queue paradigm is a sibling of the publisher ...
